Decision-making process

- ❖ Taking into consideration that we have to work with front end back-end, frameworks and also we have to include Data Base, all team members choose doing project on touristic area which would be interesting and with huge data base system. Team members gave different ideas about making Uzbekistan touristic website. We combine all ideas and firstly we made draft via figma. Then front-end, backend, frameworks

Brief Description of Business:

- ❖ Website is mainly for tourists who came from all over the world. While using our website tourists get information about our history, which is divided into several parts such as historical cities of Uzbekistan. In this manner, they are allowed to know historical places, who build them, does they exists until nowadays and any information which related with particular place or monument. Also knowing and reading historical information they can recognize which place they must visit while they come. Additionally to this point, in order to feel comfortable in the place tourist visit, they are recommended to know about culture, holidays, and customs of country they travel. In this case, they are briefly informed about music, culture, holidays, sport even education system of Uzbekistan.

- Secondly in services system, in order to provide essential needs of new comers we choose three main category such as:
  - ✓ Hotel - user can choose places living places according to their taste and budget.
  - ✓ Restaurant - user can choose any restaurant to eat either traditional of Uzbekistan or European food
  - ✓ Taxi - In order tourist felt safe, taxi service is included. They can order taxi and travel around any city of Uzbekistan

Thirdly, we included Guide system into our website

- ✓ Search for Ancient places
- ✓ Search for Modern places
- ✓ Able to choose type of places such as entertaining, concert..
- ✓ Able to choose address and search for place

Advantages

For us:

- Advertising our country
- Making profit by recommending services such as hotel, taxi and restaurant reservation

For customers:

- Safe and quick taxi system in order to travel
- Finding any type of places without difficulties
- Get information about country and feel comfortable

Used technologies and libraries for Front-end

- For building front-end side of project, we have used technologies such as:
  - ✓ HTML5, CSS3
  - ✓ JavaScript
  - ✓ Node.js (npm)
  - ✓ Gulp.js
  - ✓ Sass preprocessor

Libraries(front-end part)

- ✓ Owl-carousel v2.0
- ✓ Bootstrap v4.1
- ✓ Font-Awesome 5.*
- ✓ jQuery

All libraries are included in libs/ folder

Brand::Logo

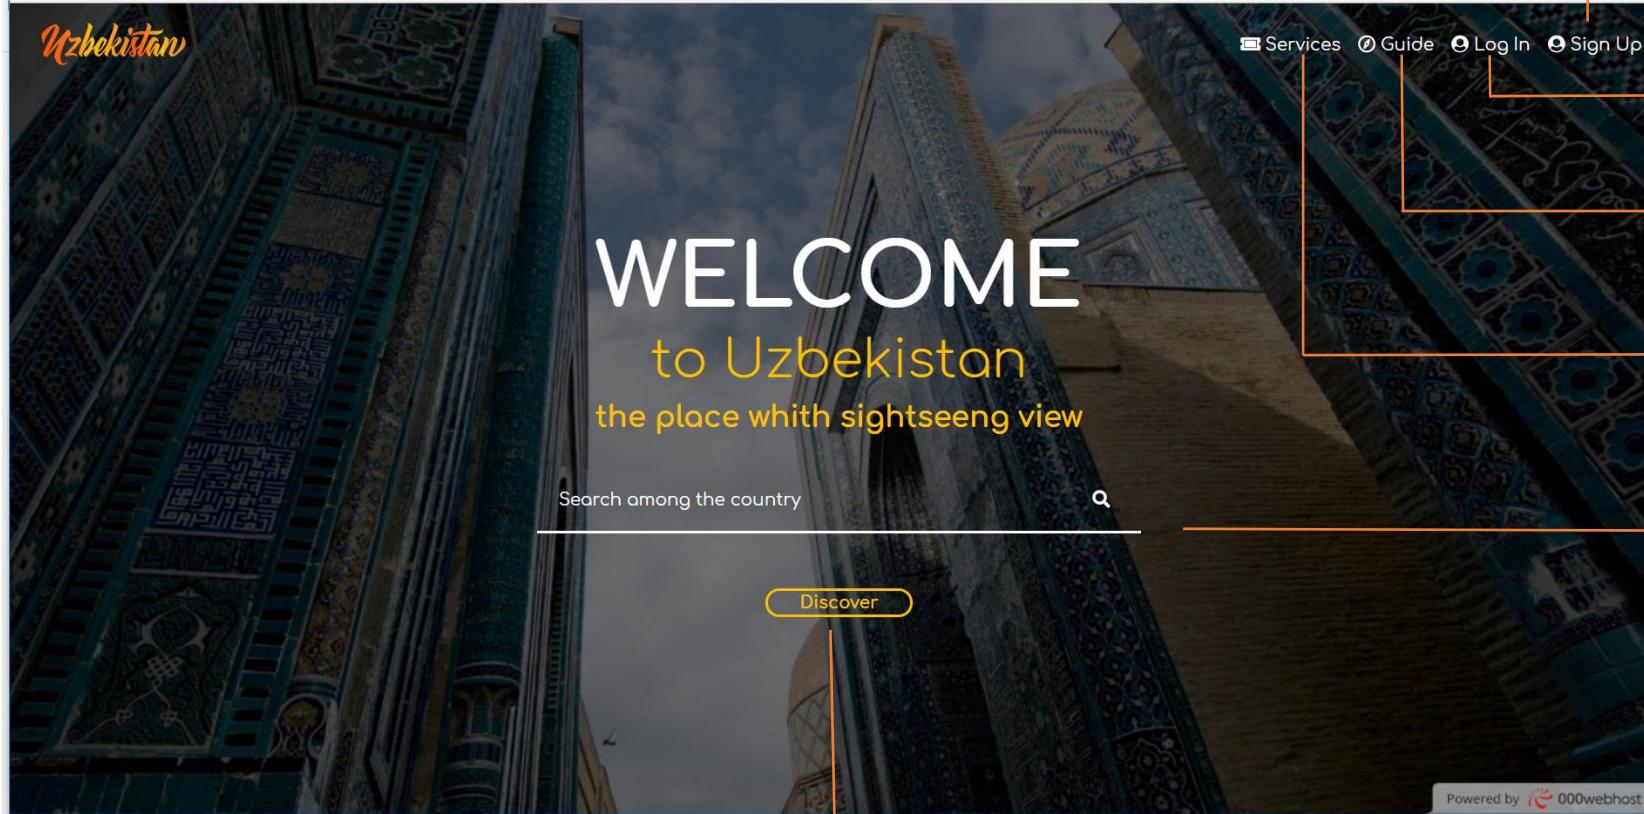

Brand logo of Uzbekistan is chosen in “flame” colors which means Sunny Country

Bekhzodkhon Makhkamov's contribution with screenshots

- I have done front-end part of Uzbekistan website. My page was landing page which contains main information about website. I have pay attention to UX, because user should know where they can get information. Additionally, it is good for user adaptation. As design, the view of site is also essential, I worked on UI part.

THE GREAT HISTORY OF UZBEKISTAN

The first people known to have inhabited Central Asia were Scythians who came from the northern grasslands of what is now Uzbekistan, sometime in the first millennium BC when these nomads settled in the region they built an extensive irrigation system along the rivers At this time, cities such as Bukhoro (Bukhara) and Samorqand (Samarkand) emerged as centres of government and high culture. By the fifth century BC, the Bactrian, Soghdian, and Tokharian states dominated the region. As China began to develop its silk trade with the West, Iranian cities took advantage of this commerce by becoming centres of trade. Using an extensive network of cities and rural settlements in the province of Transoxiana, and further east in what is today China's Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region, the Sogdian intermediaries became the wealthiest of these Iranian merchants. As a result of this trade on what became known as the Silk Route, Bukhara and Samarkand eventually became extremely wealthy cities, and at times Transoxiana (Mawarannah) was one of the most influential and powerful Persian provinces of antiquity.

In 327 BC Macedonian ruler Alexander the Great conquered the Persian Empire provinces of Sogdiana and Bactria, which contained the territories of modern Uzbekistan. A conquest was supposedly of little help to Alexander as popular resistance was fierce, causing Alexander's army to be bogged down in the region that became the northern part of the Macedonian Greco-Bactrian Kingdom. The kingdom was replaced with the Yuezhi dominated Kushan Empire in the 1st century BC. For many centuries the region of Uzbekistan was ruled by the Persian empires, including the Parthian and Sassanid Empires, as well as by other empires, for example those formed by the Turko-Persian Hephthalite and Turkic Gokturk peoples.

THE BEAUTINESS OF CULTURE

Uzbekistan has a wide mix of ethnic groups and cultures, with the Uzbek being the majority group. In 1995 about 71% of Uzbekistan's population was Uzbek. The chief minority groups were Russians (8%), Tajiks (5-30%), Kazakhs (4%), Tatars (2.5%) and Karakalpaks (2%). It is said, however, that the number of non-Uzbek people living in Uzbekistan is decreasing as Russians and other minority groups slowly leave and Uzbeks return from other parts of the former Soviet Union.

When Uzbekistan gained independence in 1991, there was concern that Muslim fundamentalism would spread across the region. The expectation was that a country long denied freedom of religious practice would undergo a very rapid increase in the expression of its dominant faith. As of 1994, over half of Uzbekistan's population was said to be Muslim, though in an official survey few of that number had any real knowledge of the religion or knew how to practice it. However, Islamic observance is increasing in the region.

Central Asian classical music is called Shashmaqam, which arose in Bukhara in the late 16th century when that city was a regional capital. Shashmaqam is closely related to Azerbaijani Mugam and Uyghur muqam. The name, which translates as six maqams refers to the structure of the music, which contains six sections in six different Musical modes, similar to classical Persian traditional music. Interludes of spoken Sufi poetry interrupt the music, typically beginning at a lower register and gradually ascending to a climax before calming back down to the beginning tone.

Future improvements:

- Adding our own services (tour to our cities like Khiva, Bukhara, Samarkand, Ferghana valley);
- Making admin page more user-friendly;
- Finishing with Guide section of landing page, which is actually working fine. But we have some problems with merging our codes, as, in backend part, two people worked simultaneously and separately. The performance of our implementation is poor due to rendering the page each and every time user chooses from dropdown list;
- Make the whole website more organized and improve the performance;
- Service part will also be accomplished using our site only, not just redirecting to another website;
